provalida Announces proQuality Suite is compatible with the new HP Quality Center 10.0

bochum, germany 10th Dec. 2008 – the german IT specialist provalida announced today that its solution proQuality Suite is compatible with the new HP Quality Center 10.0, working together to improve the quality of a customer's technology environment. The new release 10.0 of Quality Center, recently launched by HP, enhances the performance of the combination of both solutions considerably.

"HP Quality Center is the ideal solution for us to plan and administer customers' tests," said Attila Mozes, managing director of provalida. "By combining it with our proQuality Suite we are able to run very extensive test scenarios, including automated ones. The biggest player of the german telecommunication market confirms that this combination raises the quality of the company's offering. The new release of HP Quality Center will expand the options of the combination with the proQuality Suite."

The core of the provalida proQuality Suite is a framework with an extremely flexible graphical user interface, developed by the universities of Dortmund and Potsdam in Germany. A novel approach, the "one thing approach," helps to organize process scenarios with a simple integrated design. The graphically controlled elements are so transparent that special IT knowledge is not needed to create or modify processes.

"In this tough economy, customers are modernizing their applications to drive more efficiency into their IT organization," said Mark Sarbiewski, senior director of products, Software and Solutions, HP. "we create tailored solutions to help customers achieve this goal, with the proQuality-suite by provalida, which is a complementary add-on for HP Quality Center 10.0."

about provalida

provalida is the ideal partner for companies that need support to efficiently control their IT processes. The IT specialist from the German Ruhr Area provides expertise and experience to many European companies that are adapting IT strategy into their companies' strategies. (IT-Alignment).

provalida offers consulting as well as support in the execution of contract management, customer relationship management, quality management, demand management, change and release management, test management, and test automation. The application management services team specializes in the hosting and maintenance of applications.