Bill Chambers
Vice President of the LeftHand Networks Division

Hewlett-Packard Company

Bill Chambers is vice president of the LeftHand Networks Division in the HP StorageWorks organization.

Chambers has more than 20 years experience in high technology companies, specializing in new product introductions and market creation and development. During his career, Chambers has held key management positions in a number of high technology start-ups and Fortune 500 companies.

Chambers was Founder, President, and CEO of LeftHand Networks prior to being acquired by HP. In this role, Chambers led the company through successful venture financings, development of the storage industry's first IP-based Storage Area Network (IP SAN) solution. He also pioneered successful and active partnerships with Fortune 100 and emerging growth companies, and widespread acknowledgement of the company as the industry leader in the rapidly growing IP SAN market.
